Tragedy hits Games again

Groves' silver overshadowed by death of peer's mother

VANCOUVER
2010 Games

When Joannie Rochette stepped on the ice, yesterday's hockey game didn't seem all that important.

The 24-year-old from Ile-Dupas, Que., dabbed tears from her eyes, acknowledged her broken-hearted father in the stands and went ahead with practice, just hours after the death of her mother, Therese, at a Vancouver hospital.

Rochette's mother had a massive heart attack after arriving Saturday in Vancouver, said Rochette's agent David Baden. She collapsed and was taken to Vancouver General Hospital where she died overnight. She was 55.

Rochette, a six-time Canadian champion, still plans to compete in tomorrow's short program, Skate Canada officials said.

The tragedy overshadowed what had been billed as the marquee event of the day, the men's hockey matchup between Canada and the United States. There was no joy for Canadian fans at Canada Hockey Place either: Despite a frantic Canadian effort to square the game in the last two minutes, the U.S. won 5-3.

There was, however, one silver lining yesterday as Ottawa's long-track speedskater Kristina Groves took second place in the women's 1,500 metres to claim her second medal of the Vancouver campaign.

But neither a medal nor yesterday's preliminary-round hockey game, seemed of any consequence next to the death of Rochette's mother — the second instance of tragedy touching the Vancouver Olympics since they began Feb. 12.

That was the day 21-year-old Georgian luger Nodar Kumaritashvili was killed when he crashed during a training run. Since then, the Games have been beset by trouble. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa's Kristina Groves smiles after winning a silver medal in the women's 1,500-metre long-track speedskating race yesterday at the 2010 Vancouver Olympic Winter Games. It was Groves' second medal of the Games. She won a bronze last Sunday in the 3,000-metre race. More, pages 8, 9

Reward may be renewed in '07 Garon killings

INVESTIGATION Two-and-half years after a triple murder in a Hurdman-area luxury highrise, the Ottawa Police Services Board may renew a $50,000 reward offer for information that could lead to an arrest.

Retired Chief Justice of the Tax Court of Canada Alban Garon, his wife, Raymonde, and their neighbour Marie-Claire Beniskos were found murdered in the Garons' apartment at 1002-1510 Riverside Dr., on June 30, 2007.

The reward, first offered by police on June 24, 2008, was matched by the Late Alban Garon Committee for a total of $100,000. Police believe that the renewal of the reward could generate new information.

Olympics, Winterlude successful pairing, says NCC

FESTIVAL After three successful weekends, Winterlude is over for another year. And organizers couldn't be happier with the way the 32nd annual event went.

Although this year wasn't a survey year for the event, the National Capital Commission is estimating that the festival had more than 600,000 unique visitors generating more than one million visits.

"We had great levels of attendance at all the sites," said Guy Laflamme, vice-president, capital experience, marketing and communications at the NCC. "All of the new activities we provided were extremely well-received by the public."

These included Olympic-themed events to coincide with the Winter Games in Vancouver. Olympic efforts at Winterlude included a flash mob, TV monitors installed inside skate shacks along the Rideau Canal Skateway and snowboarding and freestyle demonstrations by past Olympians in Jacques-Cartier Park.

Yesterday, the NCC, along with area speedskating clubs, allowed the public to try out the sport on an Olympic-sized oval at Dow's

Lake and cheered on Ottawa's Kristina Groves as she prepared for her 1,500-metre race.

"The Olympics have had a favourable impact on Winterlude," said Laflamme. "It gets people into the spirit and into a more active mode."

Runners tough it out at Winterman races

TRACEY TONG
tracy.tong@metronews.ca

After days of mild temperatures, blustery weather dropped a layer of snow on Ottawa yesterday morning, making the Winterman races live up to their name.

But Ottawa-area residents — and winter runners in general — are a tough bunch, and were unfazed by the cold.

"It was great weather for it," enthused Carp resident Carol Malcolm, who ran the 5K. "I had a blast."

In its second year, Canada's only winter marathon — and a Boston Qualifier to boot — is already a huge success, said race director Lawrence Conway, with Ottawa-based Search and Rescue Global 1.

$8,000

The race brought in about $8,000 for the organization last year, making up a large part of their $50,000 budget.

This year's event brought in over 1,000 people for the marathon, half-marathon, 10K, 5K, 3K and relay events, despite landing on the same weekend as the Gatineau Loppet.

The race is the primary fundraiser for Search and Rescue Global 1, which has about 100 members serving eastern Ontario and western Quebec.

The completely self-funded team provides search and rescue services to local police authorities. "Our members have advanced outdoor skills and (police) can send us into the woods to look for a missing person," he said.

There have only been two occasions when the group, which was founded in 1996, has not found their subject.

And while the group, which deploys up to a dozen times a year, sees lots of happy conclusions, there are sad cases as well.

"The hardest cases are when the person goes missing and you never find anything," Conway said.

News in brief

POLICING Ottawa police took a kinder, gentler approach to their work in 2009. According to a police board report, there were 479 "uses of force" by officers reported, down about 17 per cent from 573 incidents in 2008. Taser use was cut in half, with 13 incidents in 2009, compared to more than 25 in 2008. Police officers aimed firearms at a person 200 times in 2009, but only fired twice. METRO OTTAWA

DEATH Nearly two-thirds of the costs related to the large public funeral for a slain Ottawa police officer were covered by significant discounts or in-kind donations.

According to an Ottawa Police Services Board report, the Lansdowne Park funeral tribute to Const. Ireneusz (Eric) Czarnik is estimated to have cost nearly $274,000. However, around $175,000 of that cost was covered by local organizations and vendors.

Czarnik, 51, was murdered on Dec. 29 after a person approached him as he sat in a squad car in front of the emergency department of the Ottawa Hospital Civic campus.

"The tragic and senseless death of Const. Ireneusz Czarnik had a profound effect on his family, his Ottawa Police Service family, and on the entire city of Ottawa," Chief Vern White wrote in the report. "His death brought out the very best in our community through condolences, offers of assistance and a common sense of purpose to contribute in some fashion to a funeral tribute that would honour his memory and his family."

The Jan. 7 funeral was attended by more than 8,000 people, including 5,000 law enforcement personnel representing 87 agencies from across the continent.

CRASH A woman was taken to hospital with serious injuries after the vehicle she was driving lost control and flipped onto the Rideau Canal Skateway yesterday morning.

Emergency crews were called to the scene at around 8:40 a.m. to find a black SUV that had smashed through the barrier along Colonel By Drive around 50 metres east of the Bank Street Bridge.

The driver was trapped in the vehicle and was treated for injuries by paramedics while firefighters worked to extricate her. A passenger around 12 years old was assessed by

Five firms competing to create Lansdowne Park

DEVELOPMENT The city has released the names of five firms invited to compete to create the design of Lansdowne Park's open space.

Michael Van Valkenburgh Associates of Cambridge, Mass.; Phillips Farevaag Smallenberg of Vancouver; The SWA Group of Sausalito, Calif.; West 8 Urban Design &

Landscape Architecture of Toronto and Williams, Asselin, Ackaoui & Associates Inc. of Montreal were selected from 21 submissions.

The firms will begin gathering information and ideas for the new open space. On Wednesday and Thursday, the firms will meet with the city, the National Capital Commission and the Parks Canada Agency in a design symposium.

Following the symposium, the firms will develop their proposed park designs, to be unveiled to the city in May.

A seven-member jury will then consider the submitted designs and public feedback.

Premiers wrap up friendly D.C. summit

POLITICS Seven Canadian premiers wrapped up a three-day visit to the U.S. capital yesterday, some of them heralding a new era in Canada-U.S. relations following their moment in the spotlight at an influential conference of American governors.

The premiers of Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island were warmly welcomed by U.S. power brokers throughout their time in D.C., including by three top-level figures in U.S. President Barack Obama's administration. But the highlight of their trip was their participation in the winter meeting of the National Governors' Association, with about 20 U.S. governors, mostly from border states, joining them for a round table entitled Common Border, Common Ground.

Brazil defends naval rescue

The Brazilian navy yesterday defended its response to a shipwreck that left dozens of teenage students from around the world — including 42 Canadians — adrift on the ocean for two nights.

The navy deployed a search aircraft about 19 hours after it received a distress signal from the SV Concordia on Wednesday, which officials say is in line with standard procedure.

All 48 students and 16 crew members were safely rescued Friday, nearly 40 hours after the ship capsized in the Atlantic several hundred miles (kilometres) off the Brazilian coast.

The students, who were taking part in the Canadian-based Class Afloat program, were expected to be-

A statue of Barack Obama as a 10-year-old boy was placed yesterday at the Jakarta elementary school the U.S. president once attended, after its display in a public park prompted backlash in the Indonesian capital. Many Indonesians are proud of Obama's connections to Indonesia, but detractors of the statue's park display argued an Indonesian hero should be honoured instead. ## Outgunned Taliban still fighting

AFGHANISTAN

Outnumbered and outgunned, Taliban fighters are mounting a tougher fight than expected in the town of Marjah, Afghan officials said yesterday, as U.S.-led forces converged on a pocket of militants in a western section of the town.

With fighter jets, drones and attack helicopters roaring overhead, Marine and Afghan companies advanced on a 5.2-sq. kilometre area where more than 40 insurgents were believed holed up.

"They are squeezed," said Lt. Col. Brian Christmas, commander of 3rd Battalion, 6th Marine Regiment. "It looks like they want to stay and fight but they can always drop their weapons and slip away. That's the nature of this war." Instead, the insurgents rigged Marjah with bombs and booby traps to slow the allied attack, which began Feb. 13. Teams of Taliban gunmen stayed in the town, delivering sometimes intense volleys of gunfire on Marine and Afghan units slogging through the rutted streets and poppy fields.

Dozens killed in mudslides, floods on Portuguese island

Rescue workers in Madeira dug through heaps of mud, boulders and debris yesterday, searching for victims buried by floods and mudslides that have killed at least 42 people on the popular Portuguese island.

Residents looking for missing loved ones were directed by local authorities to the resort's international airport, where a makeshift morgue has been set up.

Social services spokesman Francisco Jardim Ramos said not all the bodies had been identified. The centre is equipped with psychiatric, psychological and social counselling services, he said.

More than 120 other people were injured and an unknown number were missing, possibly swept away or smothered, authorities said, adding the death toll could still rise.

Of 248 people who were forced to flee their homes for temporary shelters, 85 have been allowed to return home, Ramos said.

Late yesterday, a spokeswoman for the British Foreign office confirmed that a British national had died, but declined to give further details. The spokeswoman spoke on condition of anonymity in line with department policy.

The Foreign Office also said a small number of Britons had been hospitalized on Madeira.

The island is popular with British tourists, who for centuries have regarded wines made in Madeira as a luxury product.

The worst storm to hit Madeira since 1993 lashed the south of the Atlantic Ocean island, including the capital, Funchal, Saturday, turning some streets into torrents of mud, water and rolling debris.

The flash floods were so powerful they carved paths down mountains and ripped through the city, churning under some bridges and tearing others down.

Residents caught in the torrent clung to railings to avoid being swept away. Cars were tossed about by the force of the water; the battered shells of overturned vehicles littered the streets.

"It was horrible, there were cars on rooftops, there were vans and trucks that had fallen and been totally crushed," said German tourist Andreas Hoisser. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Retail growth slow last year

ECONOMY In the end, recession-weary Canadians came out and shopped.

Retail sales finished the year up 6.7 per cent over last year, including a 0.4 per cent gain in the month of December, Statistics Canada said Friday.

Task force to hit the road

FINANCIAL LITERACY Canada's Task Force on Financial Literacy is launching a series of cross-country conversations with Canadians about savings, debt, and their overall financial know-how as it drafts a national strategy to create more financially educated citizens.

The task force will release its Leveraging Excellence consultation document today as a starting point to discuss issues including managing debt, saving and investing, retirement planning and preventing fraud.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty set up the group in June, citing his belief that improving Canadians' knowledge of financial matters would contribute to a more stable economy.

Socio-economic change has meant Canadians will become increasingly responsible for their financial futures, while the financial marketplace is becoming more complex, Stewart wrote.

The riders are back ... Now what?

InTransit

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/intransit

We got a little good news last week, as OC Transpo reported that the 7.8 per cent of riders who stayed away from transit after the strike have finally returned. Even better, we logged a record 8.4 million trips in December.

Now that we're back to where we started, perhaps we can start thinking about actually increasing ridership.

Our moment of civic triumph was somewhat spoiled when Montreal's Agence métropolitaine de transport released a survey showing an impressive 15 per cent growth in the use of transit in that city between 2003 and 2008.

Montreal also saw 15,000 fewer car trips, a one per cent drop, the first since these surveys began in 1970.

Meanwhile, our transit committee last week busied itself dodging an unedifying squabble between wheelchair and stroller users over priority seating on the buses.

Our ridership figures, while they aren't at all bad, have a long way to go. The city hopes to entice 30 per cent of commuters to take transit, while noting that our current rate of 20.1 per cent is third best in the country, beaten only by Toronto and Montreal, both of which are served by subways.

That last qualification, to some, might comprise an argument in favour of joining the municipal big leagues and pressing ahead with our downtown transit tunnel.

Is the solution to increased ridership as simple as build it and they will come? Maybe.

It seems the most effective way to boost ridership is to make it an attractive choice to those who have a choice. The captive audience, those who ride transit out of necessity, will put up with a lot, but if they feel the transit experience is second rate, they will get a car as soon as they can, ditch the bus pass and never look back.

A little insanity can lead to big things

HineSight

Anne
Hines

metronews.ca/hinesight

For the last 10 days I've spent many hours lounging on the couch, chowing down on chips and pop, watching the sports coverage and I've started to wonder, "What is it that makes these Olympic athletes different than me?"

I cannot think of a single reason I should not have become a contender for a medal in these Games. I can think of about a hundred. Starting with — I'm not prepared to go outside in winter or wear spandex pants in public.

The reason these athletes have achieved what the rest of us haven't is not because they have superior talent and ability to the rest of us. They do, of course, but that's not the reason. The main reason is they believe they can do it.

I have come to believe that what keeps most of us from realizing our dreams is a pesky thing called "sanity." Sanity is what stops most of us from deciding, "Gosh it might be fun to strap on skis or throw ourselves onto a flimsy metal frame and go hurtling down icy vertical drops at 200,000 km/h." Because of this, most of us see sanity as a good thing.

I'm not suggesting for a moment that high-performance athletes aren't sane. With the exception of most snowboarders, of course. But I wonder if, for many of us, "sanity" is just another word for "believing we can't actually get what we want." Our brains, which really should limit themselves to finding cures for cancer and remembering where the channel changer got put, see a new idea and say, "Oh dear. This might not work out. I will not do this." And so our response is not to try.

Maybe what makes an Olympic athlete different from the rest of us is that they listen to the desire of their heart before the warning in their head. So knowing this, am I likely to be gunning for a medal any time soon? Probably not. But when I do take on the dreams and challenges that life presents, hopefully I'll be just like our amazing athletes. Entirely courageous and a little bit insane.

Bertrand Delanoë
And make no mistake, they are more than just ambitions.

Q Speaking on the environment, how do you take stock of the situation eight years after you became mayor of Paris?

A Since 2001, we tried to work on every possible level to improve Paris environmental performance. For instance, since 2006, social housing and public buildings that are being built in the capital have the High Environmental Quality label.

We also tried to diversify transportation systems to put an end to the automotive hegemony. Therefore, we developed streetcars, protected busways, Velib' (a bike rental system) and fluvial buses. And we had some results: car traffic has been reduced by 20 per cent between 2002 and 2007, which led to a nine per cent reduction of our carbon emissions and a 32 per cent reduction of near-by pollution. It's positive, but I want to go further.

Q You want Paris to become an ecocapital. What do you mean by that?

A By 2020, we want to reach a 25 per cent reduction of our gas emissions and 25 per cent of renewable energy in our global energy consumption. We will install 200,000 square metres of solar panels by 2014 to reach this goal. We will also develop geothermics and urban windmills, and start a major isolation plan for 55,000 apartments by 2020.

Q What do you expect from the world powers today?

A I want clear commitments from rich countries by 2020 and 2050, with restrictive rules and a precise schedule. But we also need a massive support to Africa, with technologies transfers and a financial aid.

The plan proposed by France is already 7 billion euros below the current European Union propositions.

Pop star joins Prince Charles' campaign to save rainforests

Sending an SOS to the world is what British pop-star and environmentalist Sting has been doing lately.

This time not with the song Message in a Bottle but with a video, part of the Rainforest SOS, a campaign currently underway by the Prince's Rainforests Project (PRP).

The main goal is to draw attention and support to preserve world's rain forests.

To get global awareness, Sting and other celebrities joined the efforts of Prince of Wales' project.

"Climate change and the rapidly increasing destruction of the Earth's ecosystems, which we depend upon for vital materials and services are, to my mind, the greatest challenges facing the world," said Prince Charles.

"If unchecked, they will dwarf any of our current financial difficulties, resulting in billions of environmental refugees, uncertain production of food and lack of water, the increasing spread of disease and, of course, growing social instability."

Sting's support of the campaign coincides with the 30th anniversary of the

PGA boss takes blame

PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem took the blame yesterday for not alerting his players about why Tiger Woods chose to make his first public appearance during the Match Play Championship.

Players had to field several questions about Woods upon finishing their matches in the opening round Wednesday, when it was announced that Woods was to speak publicly Friday for the first time since the Nov. 27 car accident that revealed rampant affairs.

Most troubling to some players — Ernie Els in particular — was the perception that Woods was getting back at Accenture, the title sponsor at Match Play and the first company to drop Woods over the sex scandal.

Finchem, who allowed Woods to use the TPC Sawgrass clubhouse at PGA

Tim Finchem

Tour headquarters for the nationally televised event, knew that Woods was on a break from therapy and was to return on Saturday.

"In hindsight, we should have pushed the thing along in a way to get the players briefed before they went into their Wednesday matches, some so they're not coming out of a match and getting hit with all these Tiger questions," Finchem said. "We just screwed up on that. That's just a screw-up on my part."

"You can never communicate too much in this business, and when you don't, you usually pay a price. And that was a good example."

Els was among the most outspoken when he learned of Woods' plans to speak.

"It's selfish," he told Golfweek magazine.

"You can write that. I feel sorry for the sponsor. Mondays are a good day to make statements, not Friday. This takes a lot away from the golf tournament." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Damon, Tigers deal nearing completion

BASEBALL Detroit Tigers general manager Dave Dombrowski said yesterday that "significant progress" is being made in negotiations with veteran outfielder Johnny Damon.

The Tigers and Damon have reached a preliminary agreement on an $8 million US, one-year contract.

A person familiar with the negotiations says Damon has completed his physical with the Tigers, clearing the way for the team to finalize the deal.

The 36-year-old Damon would bring another left-handed bat to the Tigers' lineup besides switch-hitter Carlos Guillen. Guillen and Damon would likely alternate between left field and designated hitter, but manager Jim Leyland says Guillen would be his everyday hitter out of the No. 5 slot. Guillen batted .242 with 11 homers and 41 RBI

Canadians hold their own among boisterous fans

SUPPORT The crazy German guy with the noisemaker whirling above his head on the Whistler Village stroll turns many heads.

So does the herd of phlegmatic Swiss fans, gonging and bonging a trail through the crowds wielding cowbells the size of accordions in honour of their men's downhill gold.

The Latvians are few but steadfast, howling with national pride and waving maroon flags like matadors taunting bulls, whether at the hockey rink or the luge run.

And the egalitarian Dutch, standing out in their trademark orange, pride themselves as equal-opportunity supporters, roaring for all and sundry at the speedskating oval in Richmond.

But for sheer, unadulterated exuberance, Canadian fans are working the home field advantage at the 2010 Winter Games and running away with the unofficial Olympic title of brazenest boosters.

When Jon Montgomery, the flame-haired auctioneer from Russell, Man., won the gold medal in skeleton Friday night in Whistler, spontaneous renditions of O Canada burst out repeatedly along the village stroll.

Team Canada hockey jerseys and Canadian flags are everywhere.

"I love you, man. I love you," bawled young Canadian fans when Montgomery walked through the village throngs on the way to a TV interview — and these were the men. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Martin clinches first place in round robin

CURLING Canada's Kevin Martin has clinched first place in the men's curling round robin with his seventh win in a row at the 2010 Winter Olympics.

Martin remains the only undefeated skip in the tournament.

He controlled his game against Markus Eggler of Switzerland from the start, scoring two points in the first and seventh ends en route to a 6-4 victory.

Norway's Thomas U-

srud lost 8-7 in an extra end to Sweden, giving Martin first place in the round robin and a berth in the semi-final.

Norway's record fell to 5-2. Switzerland, Sweden and Britain follow with 4-3 records.

David Murdoch, the defending world champion from Britain, dumped the United States 4-2.

Miller makes 42 saves as U.S. scores upset

Playing in throwback jerseys from the 1960 Olympics, the U.S. men's hockey team rode the hot goaltending of Ryan Miller to defeat Team Canada 5-3 yesterday — its first Olympic victory over its northern rival since winning gold at the Games 50 years ago.

Brian Rafalski scored two goals and Miller made 42 saves as the Americans came out on top of a wildly entertaining hockey game.

The biggest question for the Canadian team will be who starts in goal tomorrow, when Canada faces a must-win playoff to advance to the quarter-finals. Martin Brodeur looked a bit shaky against the U.S. and was also the victim of a couple bad bounces, perhaps opening the door for Roberto Luongo to assume the No. 1 job.

Canada didn't find out its opponent in tomorrow's playoff game until after the preliminary round ended with the Sweden-Finland matchup late last night, but it does know that only victories will be good enough from here. Team Canada needs four straight wins to earn the gold medal an en-

Canadian women thump U.S. in curling

BLOWOUT It's been something of a rarity at the Vancouver Olympics, where the host country has been largely upstaged by the medal performance of its giant neighbour to the south, but Canada finally came out on top against the United States yesterday.

Curler Cheryl Bernard picked up her fifth straight win to start the Winter Games with a 9-2 thrashing of the Americans. Bernard made an open draw for four in the third end and never looked back in a match that was called after seven frames.

The blowout victory is the first for Bernard at the Vancouver Olympics that didn't come courtesy of a dramatic final stone.

SKI CROSS There will be no Olympic medal for Canadian ski cross racer Chris Del Bosco after the medal favourite crashed on the second-last jump in yesterday's final at the Winter Olympics.

The crash-and-bang sport is making its debut at the Vancouver Games.

Michael Schmid of Switzerland won the gold ahead of Andreas Matt of Austria and Norway's Audun Groenvold, who took advantage of Del Bosco's fall to grab the bronze.

Del Bosco — an American who has dual citizenship through his father — started slowly but worked his way into third before losing his balance and landing heavily on his side. He received medical treatment on the course but appeared to be OK.

"Chris was sitting in a great position to stand on top of that podium today," said Whistler's Davey Barr, a late Canadian team injury replacement who finished sixth. "Yeah it was heartbreaking."

Czech Martina Sablikova took the bronze in 1:57.96.

Groves also won a bronze in the 3,000 metres earlier in the Games. She's Canada's first multi-medallist in Vancouver. When she received her medal on the podium at the Richmond Oval, Groves' eyes filled with tears.

That's what happens when you come from Indian heritage and grow up in England, Montreal and Oakville, Ont.

Being exposed to all this food diversity eventually influenced Kacker's career choice, but as a young person she wanted to become a doctor.

Kacker, now 32, studied nutrition and nutritional sciences at the University of Guelph, and followed it with a master's in human philosophy and nutrition, thinking she'd go to medical school.

But then she took a course in product development as part of her degree. "This is exactly what I want to do with the rest of my life," she thought at the time.

A friend working in the food industry hooked Kacker up with her first job after graduation. She helped a small gourmet food company develop things like tapenades and flavoured oils for high-end food stores.

Kacker has worked on a number of different food categories over the last five years. "Now I have the best category," she says, creating frozen entrees, pizza, frozen fruits and vegetables, ice cream and beer.

Kacker works on a team with a product manager and a quality assurance expert. After an idea is proposed and gets basic approval, Kacker starts cooking, either in the test kitchen or with staff at a food manufacturer's plant. She'll create numerous versions of the dish and share them with the company's other product development teams during daily tasting sessions. (If she works on anything Indian she'll often pass it by her mom to make sure it tastes authentic.)

Employers share top staffing challenges

While hopeful economic news has some companies breathing a cautious sigh of relief when it comes to headcounts, others continue to face staffing challenges.

According to a new survey, being able to provide competitive compensation (34 per cent), maintaining productivity levels (33 per cent) and being able to retain top talent (31 per cent) are organizations' top staffing concerns this year. In addition to salary and productivity, a variety of retention issues are worrying some organizations this year as they try to maintain staff levels in the recession rebound.

When asked how they will hold on to top talent this year, employers reported the following:

Do you fret that your introverted personality will not help you land in the top contender list at job interviews? Or, that you will not be identified as a candidate for promotion because you just can't seem to make yourself heard?

You may have reason to worry.

While being introverted is simply a way of being for about a third of the population in this country, introverts do have to work a little harder to get recognized for their achievements.

"The talents and strengths of an introvert are more hidden. They don't tend to showcase themselves so they are more likely to get overlooked," explains Carole Cameron, human resources specialist and author of Splash: An Introvert's Guide to being Seen, Heard and Remembered. "The talents and strengths of an extrovert are on the outside, so they are more easily recognized and rewarded," she adds.

Because body language plays such a big role in job interviews and talking about yourself can be very hard for introverts, Carole Cameron advises introverts to try and appear more assured.

And that can lead to frustration. "Introverts can feel like they're missing out on great stuff just because they haven't engaged enough — their good stuff isn't out there enough for people to notice."

Cameron describes herself as an introvert. She understands the frustration of having great ideas but not being able to come across during meetings and interviews. "I felt totally invisible," she says.

But there is hope. Cameron's own experience led her to write her book, which lays out a path for introverts "to make a splash, to be heard, to be remembered, to be visible."

Especially during interviews, body language is extremely important, she says. Introverts are uncomfortable talking about themselves, and it shows. Get feedback from friends and family on how to appear more assured, or videotape and watch yourself and purposefully focus on changing the impression you make.

To appear more confident, make it your mission

Are you an Introvert?

- One distinguishing characteristic of introverts is that, even though they can "switch" on during social events and have a good time, they expend energy socializing and must recharge afterwards, by being alone or doing a solitary activity. Lots of chatting can exhaust them.

- Extroverts, by comparison, become energized by being with other people and don't like being solitary most of the time. They like to talk, often at length and in great detail, and "think out loud" to explore and develop ideas or solutions.

to smile, make eye contact, sit up straight, keep your hands from fiddling, and finally, practise that firm handshake.

As an introvert who does not take naturally to casual "off the cuff" types of conversations, make sure you formulate and practise in advance the answers to anticipated interview questions or crucial points of a conversation with the boss.

To be memorable during an interview, wear something distinctive (but tasteful) that the interviewer is likely to make note of — a beautiful handbag or briefcase, a bright red scarf, or an unusual piece of jewelry. Or tell the interviewer something interesting about yourself, something likely to make a connection.

Also keep in mind that networking is the most likely avenue for finding work. Search for strategies to make networking work for you, such as volunteering at conventions.

And once you are hired, make sure the bosses know about all the wonderful things you do at work. For example, send a friendly weekly e-mail outlining status and achievements.

And if you end up in a meeting, accept the reality that introverts can easily get drowned out in the chatter of the extrovert majority. It's best to identify the points you wish to make and concentrate on delivering them succinctly and with confidence.

People find their way back to work

More than half (58 per cent) of the employees laid off in the last 12 months continue to be resilient in their job searches and have secured new positions.

According to an updated survey by CareerBuilder, 51 per cent of workers who were laid off from full-time jobs in the last 12 months have found new full-time positions, up from 48 per cent in June 2009.

"Despite one of the most competitive job markets in decades, nine-in-10 workers say they have not given up on their job searches, and the amount of workers who have found work is evidence that their drive and determination are paying off," said Brent Rasmussen, President of CareerBuilder North America.

"The number of laid-off workers who have found new full-time and part-time jobs rose in the last six months. Although this good news reflects a healing economy, it also shows that job seekers are exploring career options in new industries."

Changes in Pay

Looking at workers who were laid off in the last 12 months and found new jobs, 61 per cent reported they were able to negotiate comparable or higher pay for their new position. Thirty-nine per cent of workers took a pay cut.

Transferring Skills

Workers reported they are applying their skills to new areas. More than half (51 per cent) of workers who were laid off in the last 12 months and landed new jobs said they found work in a different field than where they were previously employed, with a third having said they really enjoy their new positions.

Starting a Business

An increased number of job seekers have adopted an "if you can't find a job, create one" way of thinking. Nearly three-in-10 workers (29 per cent) who have not found jobs are considering starting their own business, on par with findings from the June survey.

Health care a good bet

CareerBuilder's annual health care job forecast indicates that the already healthy hiring of the sector will likely continue into 2010.

More than one-in-five (22 per cent) health employers said they plan to increase the number of full-time, permanent employees this year, up from 17 per cent who said the same last year, according to the survey.

In addition to plans to add full-time employees, health care employers will also be bringing part-time help on board to help meet demand. One-in-10 said they had plans to increase the number of part-time employees at their organizations in 2010.

"While most industries struggled with headcount since the start of the recession, health care was and continues to be one of the strongest industries for hiring," said Jason Ferrara, vice president of corporate marketing for CareerBuilder.

"There is high demand for qualified health care workers across a variety of areas; everything from medical assistants to records specialists to nurses."

Recruitment trends

- Replacing Low-Performing Employees: Health care employers are taking advantage of the large number of top talent in the current labor pool to strengthen their work force.

- More Flexibility: Flexible work options continue to be an important benefit for health care employers to provide workers.

- Recruitment Tools: As demand for qualified workers continues, health care employers will leverage a variety of recruitment tools in 2010 to fill open positions.

FEMALE MBA GRADS EXPERIENCE INEQUITIES DURING CAREER, STUDY FINDS According to a new report from Catalyst, a non-profit organization that works with businesses to increase opportunities for women, women lag behind men in both job level and salary starting from their first position after completing business school and do not catch up. Part of an ongoing study of female and male MBA alumni in the U.S., Canada, Europe, and Asia, the report found that women start at lower levels, make on average $4,600 less in their initial jobs, and continue to be outpaced by men in rank and salary growth. Men were twice as likely to hold CEO or senior executive positions and less likely to be at lower levels, where women were overrepresented, the report observed. The findings hold when taking into account parenthood and level of aspiration.

Comedy Campaign

Fred Ewanuick stumps for new show Dan For Mayor

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

Fred Ewanuick says being the star of a new comedy series is hard work — something he mostly avoided in the past.

"I think I really underestimated the work load," laughs Ewanuick, best known as Corner Gas' lovable schlub Hank.

"On Corner Gas, I'd work three days a week maybe and just shoot a couple scenes a day. This is every day, all day. Not that I'm complaining, but it was a bit of a shock."

Ewanuick's extra effort has resulted in the comedy Dan For Mayor. In it, the actor plays Dan Phillips, a nice guy bartender who impulsively decides to run for mayor to prove to his ex-girlfriend he's not a loser.

The decision sets in motion an election campaign filled with mishaps and mistakes as Dan finds himself in the public eye and

Fred Ewanuick launches a campaign to impress his ex-girlfriend in Dan For Mayor.

Dan For Mayor premieres March 1 on CTV

way over his head.

Created by the well-known writing trio of Mark Farrell, Paul Mather and Kevin White, one assumes Dan For Mayor will conclude with the season-ending election of Dan. Or will it?

"Well, I'm not saying," laughs Ewanuick. "But I think it's safe to say you can't just have the character constantly running for mayor every year. So something is going to happen eventually. But I can't say what."

Though it's not a big acting stretch from Corner Gas' Hank to his Dan For Mayor character, Ewanuick sees a few differences.

"Well, Dan is definitely brighter than Hank. He's just this guy who has no direction. And has reached that point where he's starting to wonder what he's going to do with his life. Sort of like my life."

As excited as he is about Dan For Mayor's premiere, Ewanuick is more thrilled by his current gig as host of the Olympics' nightly victory ceremonies in Whistler.

"It's been just great. The atmosphere is incredible here," he says.

"The only problem is I'm on stage at the same time as the (Canadian) hockey games. But I'm free the night of the gold medal game, so if Canada is in it, I'll be there screaming."

Hurt Locker trumps Avatar to win top British film prize

Iraq war drama The Hurt Locker took home six prizes, including best picture, at the British Academy Film Awards in London last night.

Kathryn Bigelow won the best director prize for the film, beating nominees that included her former husband, Avatar director James Cameron.

The Hurt Locker also won prizes for original screenplay, cinematography, editing and sound. Avatar picked up awards for production design and visual effects.

Avatar and The Hurt Locker both went into the awards with nominations in eight categories, including best picture.

The awards, known as BAFTAs, are considered an important indicator of likely Oscar success. Austrian actor Christoph Waltz, already a hot Oscar favourite, won the supporting actor prize for his turn as a chilling, charming Nazi colonel in Inglourious Basterds. The supporting actress award went to Mo'Nique for Precious.

Director Duncan Jones took the award for best British debut for his lost-in-space drama Moon.

A tearful Jones, whose father is musician David Bowie, said it had taken him a long time to figure out what he wanted to do with his life. "Finally, I think I've found what I love doing," he said.

Hilton birthday bash ends in tears, smiles

HER ENTIRE EMOTIONAL RANGE! IT MUST HAVE BEEN SO EXHAUSTING FOR HER Paris Hilton's 29th birthday party was thrown into chaos when her boyfriend Doug Reinhardt got into a fight with her pal Brandon Davis, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

Onlookers were stunned after the heiress and former The Hills star Reinhardt began arguing in the middle of New York hot spot Tea Room on Thursday. A furious Hilton walked off, and moments later Reinhardt was at the centre of another screaming match with oil heir Brandon Davis, who was once romantically linked to the socialite.

Reinhardt was said to have been angry after Davis arrived unexpectedly and appeared to be inebriated, according to The New York Post.

A source tells the publication, "One minute, Paris and Doug were looking all loved up; the next minute, they started bickering. Doug didn't seem happy about all the attention she was getting. Paris started to pout and gave him some girly punches in the back before storming off.

"The next minute, Doug was shouting at Brandon. The music was so loud that we couldn't hear what he was saying, but he then got Brandon thrown out of the door."

But the birthday girl patched things up with her boyfriend and ended the night with a smile on her face.

to put people on that actually know what they're talking about. Rather than guessing, they really have to have experience, so that you cannot just criticize — you can offer constructive advice as well."

Cowell is also sure audiences won't be seeing Howard Stern sitting in his chair: "He doesn't seem to fit any of the criteria."

HOW TO PLAY: Digits 1 through 9 will appear once in each zone — one zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine zones in the puzzle. Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same zone, row across or column down the entire puzzle.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Sweet and Spicy Chickpeas

INGREDIENTS:

398 mL can chickpeas, drained and rinsed
Finely grated zest and juice of 1 lime
1 tsp white sugar
1 tsp garam masala
1/2 tsp ground cinnamon
1 tsp dried oregano
2 tbsp canola oil
2 small onions, halved and thickly sliced
2 peppers (1 red, yellow or orange and 1 green), halved and thickly sliced
12 baby plum or cherry tomatoes, halved

METHOD:

1. Tip chickpeas into bowl. Add lime zest and juice, sugar, garam masala, cinnamon and oregano. Stir to coat chickpeas in spicy mixture. Set aside.

2. Heat large frying pan or wok with oil. When oil is hot, add onions and stir-fry 4 minutes or until just beginning to colour. Reduce heat and add peppers. Cook for further 3-4 minutes, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are almost tender.

3. Stir in tomatoes, then add spicy chickpea mixture. Cook 2 minutes or until vegetables are tender and everything is hot.

ARIES

MARCH 21-APRIL 20
If you must make a decision about a work-related problem at least wait until the full moon on the 28th has passed by.

TAURUS

APRIL 21-MAY 21
Your work schedule is pretty full at the moment and if you commit yourself to something new it might stretch you too far.

LIBRA

SEPT 23-OCT 23
A radical change of direction is signaled for the coming week and you must expect to encounter stiff opposition.

SCORPIO

OCT 24-NOV 22
Try not to react in an emotional way to what is essentially a practical problem. You have a talent for hiding your true feelings. You need that talent now.

GEMINI

MAY 22-JUNE 21
You can make things easy for yourself or you can make things difficult — it is your choice entirely.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23-DEC 21
Current aspects add a sense of urgency to what you are doing but you must not get carried away — time is still on your side.

CANCER

JUNE 22-JULY 22
Adventurous Crabs will go out of their way to seek out new experiences. Not-so-adventurous Crabs will have new experiences thrust upon them.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22-JAN 20
You have made a number of sacrifices in recent weeks and should now be feeling the benefits. So don't go and spoil it by taking unnecessary risks.

LEO

JULY 23-AUG 23
There is a distinct chance that you will clash with a partner or loved one over something that is fundamental to your relationship.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21-FEB 18
A relationship problem you have been trying to ignore will be brought into the open today and everything will change.

VIRGO

AUG 24-SEPT 22
You should find it easier to get along with partners, employers and colleagues this week, at least until the 28th.

PISCES

FEB 19-MARCH 20
If you are a bit worried about the way your life is going then talk things over with someone you can trust.
